POSSIBLE FURTHER ONLINE SERVICES

At its own discretion, Polimoda may decide to make further online services available to Students (e.g. email services and possible connected services / platform access / electronic resources / software licences) differentiated on the basis of the type and level of courses attended.

Any email accounts allocated to Students and any other access to online services made available to them must be used exclusively for purposes connected to attendance at the course on which the Student is enrolled.

At the end of the course, an account that may have been allocated to the Student will be deactivated; one month before closure of the Student record, the Student will receive an email, sent to the personal email address supplied, informing him/her of the methods and times of the deactivation. When the account is closed the Student will no longer be able to access the services linked to his/her credentials, and therefore to his/her own email, nor access the documentation stored to cloud; polimoda will arrange for all contents saved by the Student in the storage spaces previously made available to him/her to be deleted.

Online services made available to the Student and in particular the email account and the cloud storage space will also be deactivated as shown above, with deletion of the relative contents, if the Student should decide to withdraw from the course or anyway abandon the training program without formalising this using the appropriate forms.

In the case where course attendance is suspended, the accesses removed will be restored when the Student is readmitted to attendance at courses.

Therefore, no request/claim of any kind (e.g. for compensation) may be submitted by Students to polimoda in reference to the deactivation of the account previously allocated and of the connected services as shown above, including deletion of contents saved by the Student in the storage spaces.
